

OLD-TIME FIGHTER OF CHAMPIONS GIVES HIS OPINION OF FIGHT

BRADY LIKES CARPENTER'S CHANCES AGAINST DEMPSEY

Declares Frenchman Displayed Little of Real Ability Against Levinsky.

By William A. Brady.
(Former Manager of Corbett and Jim Jeffries.)

When Jack Dempsey faces Georges Carpentier in the ring at Jersey City tomorrow he will meet the fastest, heaviest, trickiest, hardest-hitting boxer he has ever met in his career.

I was at Toledo on July 4, two years ago, and I profited by Dempsey's victory. I predicted he would beat Willard in four rounds. I carried quite a large sum there and had no chance to wager it on Dempsey at that time.

I have seen Dempsey in action many times. I saw Carpentier box Gunboat Smith in London in 1914. In that bout I saw the young Frenchman put the heavy Smith down for the count of nine with a left jab to the jaw and Gunboat had at that time faced Dempsey successfully for twenty rounds. The knockdown was scored when both men were as fresh as when they started, for little had been done in the early rounds.

I am frank to state, however, that I think if the bout could have continued to the limit, Smith would have won. Carpentier owes that victory to the quick thinking of Dempsey, who claimed a foul when Smith's left hand struck Carpentier's head, which was on his knees. He had slipped there and had not been knocked down. Carpentier was in a good shape when the foul occurred and could have continued with an even chance to win.

When he fought Levinsky last year in Jersey City he disclosed but little of his real ability. He will prove a fifteen puzzle to Dempsey Saturday. Jack will find no slow-moving, show-thinking Fulton, or Willard, or Morris before him. He will meet a fast master as brave as they make them, with a punch that if it reaches the spot will render Mr. Dempsey or any other fighter in the world hors d'oeuvre.

I am not underrating Dempsey. He is a wonderful specimen and has a remarkable record. But I saw him box Brennan. If that contest was an honest one, and I think it was, then it should be even on Saturday's match.

Don't talk to me about Dempsey being in bad condition the night he met Brennan. The bout lasted twelve rounds and Dempsey won by a knockout. That result does not indicate a lack of condition on the part of either man. It was proved in Toledo when Willard fainted at will on him in rounds one and three, notwithstanding the fact that he could hardly stand after the beating he foolishly took in the fourth round. Mike fought Dempsey ten rounds twice and held his own. The battle at Ronton Harbor was a hard one, but it was not a hospital nearly a year.

Willie Meehan has a decision over

Dempsey. Yet Young Gibbons defeated him in one round this week. I quote these bouts to show that Dempsey has no claim to being invincible. The glory of his record is found in his quick defeat of Willard, Fulton and Morris—men who could hardly get out of their own way.

The articles of agreement for this contest were signed in my office. There Carpentier and Dempsey met for the first time. Carpentier proposed that it should be for Dempsey, but Carpentier insisted on Dempsey signing personally. We waited two hours for Dempsey's arrival. It was plain to me that the Frenchman simply had planned to have a good look at his prospective opponent before sailing back to France a few days later.

Dempsey arrived. Carpentier like a shot sprang to his feet, crossed Dempsey and while he carelessly felt Dempsey's muscles, slapped his thighs. He said to me, "Look at that! A complete look over, laughing, tilted the air with admiring shouts of 'Magnifique! Tremendous! Superb! Wonderful! Mon Dieu!'"

Meanwhile, Dempsey stood looking at Carpentier, his eyes fixed on the other man and in fact he did not open his mouth for 5 minutes after that.

Dempsey remarks that he had seen him play eighteen holes of golf together. It seemed queer to fight for the count of nine with a man who had been very well traveling after him on a golf course. I wonder if that is why the two boys became acquainted that golf game.

During my long experience with boxing, I have seen many fights, but I have never seen a man who has been so severely beaten as Carpentier was in two rounds just before leaving France, and Carpentier was beaten by another Frenchman in a few rounds a week or so before Carpentier sailed over here.

Trust Dempsey's purpose in sending Carpentier to the slaughter.

In all this I am not predicting that Carpentier will win. I am willing to go on record most emphatically that Dempsey faces Carpentier on an even basis. In my opinion the bout will end in a knockout before the end of the sixth round. If it becomes a question of endurance, which has been the case in the early rounds, Carpentier will be the victor. If it becomes a question of endurance, which has been the case in the early rounds, Carpentier will be the victor.

At odds of three or four to one, I should back Carpentier.

ABOUT FISH AND FISHERMEN

HIGH WATER.

The weather to-day will probably be fair.

Frank P. Hilton has gone up the Hudson to spend the Fourth at Saugerties. Frank is not a devotee of fresh-water fishing, so he does not expect to wet a line.

Julius Rosenberg sailed yesterday morning for Europe to be gone about four months. He goes to visit his family from whom he has been separated for forty years.

Henry Klippel, No. 116 Third Avenue. Write to Postmaster, Belgrade, Me., or Postmaster, Rangleys Lakes, Me. From one or both you can probably get all the information you desire.

Capt. Joseph Stefano of No. 804 Halsey Street, Brooklyn, writes: "While fishing about five miles off Arverne, L. I. we were troubled by a man-eating shark, which took all of our fish. We decided to try and catch him. Baited a hook with whiting and he fell for it. After fighting him for an hour or more we finally landed him, but first had to beat his head off. It took five men to handle him. He was nine feet long and weighed 300 pounds or more."

It is a wise precaution to kill a big shark before attempting to take it aboard a boat. Some years ago I was fishing for channel bass off the Jetty at Charleston, S. C. Two acquaintances were fishing in a skiff near by. One of them hooked a shark about six feet long and after a battle royal brought it alongside. The other man in the skiff attempted to grab it. I warned him not to take it on the boat without killing it, but he disregarded the warning. No sooner was the fish in the boat than it seized the man who had hooked it by an ankle and bit him so severely that he nearly died to death before he could be taken ashore. As it was the man was laid up for a week.

This is the time for striped bass as well as weakfish. The late Charles P. Holder in one of his books rates the striped bass above the salmon as a game fish, and gives in substantiation that size for size the striped bass cannot be landed on tackle commonly used for salmon. In my own experience, I have had an eleven pound striped bass run a hundred yards on its first rush. It grows to great size. Individuals have been taken in nets that weighed more than 100 pounds. The rod and reel record is seventy-three pounds, a fish taken some years ago near Cuttyhunk, Mass. It is found in the surf about Monks Point, in the bays, and all along the Jersey shore, but is less abundant than it was fifteen or twenty years ago. At Ocean City and persons in fact, N. J., it is frequently taken from the bridges and trestles, around the pilings of which it is given to feeding.

Stoffer Came Here From Russia With Penniless Mother—Worked Way at Harvard.

David Stoffer, Harvard graduate, this year's winner of the National Municipal League for its annual essay competition among college men, was brought to the United States from Russia when he was a boy by his penniless and widowed mother. He is twenty-two years old now, has earned his way through college, winning the Price Greenleaf and two Bowditch scholarships, and made the four-year Harvard course in three years.

Stoffer was graduated from the Passaic, N. J., high school as an honor student in 1917. In September he will begin studies in the Harvard Law School.

The essay which won him the Baldwin prize was written by him for thousands of students in the leading colleges and universities in the country was on the subject, "The Effect of Non-partisan Elections on the Formation of Municipal Parties."

The Baldwin prize was offered last year by Baldwin Jr., former President of the Long Island Railroad. It has been won eleven times by Harvard, twice by Yale and last year by Yale. This year Stoffer takes it back to Harvard.

WASHINGTON, July 1.—Valeria Parker, who to-day will become Executive Secretary of the International Social Hygiene Board, says "the vamps" are responsible for the falling of young men.

"The boys are simply demoralizing the girls," Dr. Parker said today. "They are spending all their money on their clothes and all they think about is having a good time."

"There are only two ways to get a girl to be a good girl," Dr. Parker said. "One is to give her a good education and the other is to give her a good job."

MITCHELLTOWN, N. Y., July 1.—Thomas Smyth of this city, whose name appears on the slacker list, says he fought with the Canadians in the Canadian Expeditionary Force.

According to a statement made by him, he was captured by the Germans in the slacker list, served in the Canadian Expeditionary Force, and was captured by the Germans in the slacker list.

SOME MORE STATISTICS.

For $200,000 Dempsey can buy a Hollicking-Royce, a pair of sport shoes and a week's vacation at a swell beach hotel.

For $200,000 Carpentier can get twelve rats of arnica, eight rolls of court plaster, a new set of teeth, a pound of bifeek for his eyes and a trip back to France as soon as he's able.

When this scrap is over a lot of experts are going to start having their own meals.

Weather sharps predict a fair day for Tex Rickard July 2. About $700,000 profit certainly sounds like a fair day.

Statistics show that in the past two years wood alcohol has cut down the supply of light customers by approximately $50,000 dead and 200,000 blinded.

Five million brides will change their names this summer, but they have nothing on five million college guys that will be playing summer ball.
